COVID-19 has brought great challenges to the globe. Some of us have even lost our financial security. As a group of young active citizens, we aim to help everyone who has been affected, so that they can overcome their crises.

Since late 2020, Junior Chamber International (JCI) has launched a new initiative called RISE. It's an acronym for Rebuild, Invest, Sustain and Evolve. The objective is to help the world to recover from the problems of the pandemic.

In this issue, you will see how our young professionals

RISE above the challenges (pun intended). Despite frustrations of lockdowns and social distancing, they have found innovative solutions to transform their career.

They made use of new technology like virtual reality, online entertainment and distance learning to conquer the restrictions on face-to-face gathering, and also expand their client bases to overseas customers.

It is hoped that you will not only learn a few practical tricks from these young professionals, but also get inspired by their stories, and know more about our duties to the world as a network of young active citizens.

NATIONAL PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

“ TIME PASSES QUICKLY AND HERE WE ARE, IN THE FINAL MONTH OF THE FRUITFUL 2021. ”

Have you achieved the goals you set for yourselves at the beginning of the year? Have you done something that made you and people who love you proud? Have you become a better version of yourselves? I sincerely hope that your answers are “Yes!” because in my eyes, all of you have done an amazing job and as your National President, I couldn't be more proud of you, my fellow members of JCI Hong Kong. You are truly the Empowered Leaders and have Empowered many Leaders in 2021.

Many people asked if I would miss the days of being your National President. It's complicated. LOL. On one hand, I would finally have some time to watch Netflix, get back on my aerial yoga hammock, enjoy the sunset on my rooftop and sing karaoke all day long. But on the other hand, I would definitely miss the crazy routine with 5-6 events covering Hong Kong Island, Kowloon and the New Territories in 1 day, the hybrid meetings that I chaired and not sure if people online could hear me, the sleepless nights saving the world with some super heroes sometimes without the world knowing... and most of all, I would miss our selfie moments.

I still remember the day of my installation in which I took the solemn oath to faithfully execute the office of the National President. From that day onwards, I always reminded myself to, "to the best of my ability, serve as a living example of this organization's philosophy and belief." I thought it would be easier said than done but it turned out that it is not that difficult to serve you and JCI Hong Kong because you have been the most loving, caring and supportive people I have ever met. You empowered me to complete this challenging journey with so many smiles and happy tears.

Thank you so much. It's been an honor to be your Empowered Leader. May you be successful in your endeavors and I look forward to empowering more leaders with you in years to come!

NATIONAL PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

INTERVIEW WITH JCI EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

SENATOR TERESA POON

Written by Victor Chan, Editor-in-Chief

Planting the Seeds of Success

“The Karma of Love by Michael Roach has had a profound influence in my life. I learned that every thought plants the seeds of karma every single moment. Whatever you think, good or bad, will return to you.”

JCI Executive Vice President Teresa Poon said she is grateful for knowing this before she became JCIHK National President in 2017. It had helped her so much during her presidency as well as the rest of her life.

As a leader, motivating and empowering your coworkers is one of the greatest challenges. But what goes around, comes around. If you do good to the people around you, good karma will eventually come back to you.

The Fear of Expansion

It was an important moment in Teresa’s career when she persuaded her family business to expand into a new territory. Everyone thought it was too risky. They fear the potential danger of ruining the company.

INTERVIEW WITH JCI EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Her family is in the smart lock business for homes and hotels. They used to sell their “smart home system” one at a time. One day, Teresa suggested accepting a large tender project for installing 60 smart home systems inside a complex.

The major fear was that they would have to hire a new team of people for doing this, because they did not do anything like that before. Will the cost be covered in the long run? Will there be too much work to do?

There was quite some resistance when the idea came out. After all, the company had been doing fine all along. They were under no pressure to make such a move. Why would you fix something that is working?

To make things worse, Teresa had only joined the business for a very short time back then. To those who have been in the company for a long time, it will be extra hard to make a persuasive argument for the change.

Does it sound familiar to you? When you join the management of your organisation, do you find it hard to propose new changes? Do your people resist because they fear that they could not do it, or that it is not worth the risk?

Embrace the Difference

So how did Teresa overcome the challenge? The first thing that she did was to appreciate the difference. “When someone disagrees, you can learn to see things from their perspective, and understand why.”

People see things differently because they look at the same thing at different angles. Sometimes, they can discover things which are inside the blind spots from your point of view. You won’t know until you talk to them.

It is also important to share your vision with your team. “When they see the picture that inspires you, they will begin to understand the rationale behind your thinking, and accept a common ground.”

It ties well to Stephen Covey’s principle: first seek to understand, then to be understood. Even though it was not an easy process, Teresa had finally persuaded her family business to make a strategic change.

And it had eventually paid off. Not long after their expansion, many developers had started to equip smart home systems in luxurious residences. The demand had also surged in Macau such that they had opened another branch there.

As a leader, it is your job to inspire your team to take on new challenges, and encourage them to reach a higher level. To do this, you must motivate them to step up their game. How could this be done effectively?

Closing the Gender Gap

When Teresa became the Vice President of JCI for the Asia-Pacific region in 2019, she was surprised to find that, in some countries like Japan and South Korea, the vast majority of their JCI members were male.

Teresa explained, “If you are a woman, and when you walk into an organisation where nearly all members are male, you will ask yourself if you are in the wrong place.” But she also believed that it could be changed.

Coming from a female-only local chapter, Teresa thinks that social perception plays a role. “For example, manual labour is supposed to be done by men. But when your chapter is all-female, the ladies would have to do it anyway!”

Therefore, during the 2019 Asia-Pacific Conference in Jeju, Korea, Teresa encouraged more female members in her team to take up higher positions. It gives people a chance to see that women could play a key role in JCI too.

“As the female members demonstrate their capability, their male counterparts will be more willing to share responsibilities with them.” This is how changes gather momentum by starting with a tiny simple step.

When you care for the people working for you, and encourage them to get better, they will eventually come around to help you go further. This is how you reap the fruits of what you think and do according to your karma.

Good Morning, NP!

Back in 2017, when she was still the JCIHK National President, Teresa took on a new challenge. She wanted to directly engage all the new JCIHK members. The series of activities is now known as “Good Morning, NP”.

Perspective members from different local chapters were invited to join the National President in morning activities like having breakfast or exercising. The goal was to engage them in a relaxed, informal setting.

It is a job that doesn’t pay, and it takes away her time for rest. Despite this, Teresa thinks that it is worth the effort. “Even though there’s no direct benefit, what you invest in them will come back to you in the end.”

Being the National President is often considered a daunting task. It is completely voluntary, and it takes up so much of your time. What made Teresa accept the challenge, and what makes her think that it’s worth it?

“Success or failure is not merely measured by how much money you have. It is also about the impact you can bring to the world. All the prominent people I know talk about the contributions they made to the society”

In addition, Teresa thinks that “success” is different for everyone. “It is simply impossible for everyone to be the richest person. We are born with different talents so that we could bring something different to this world.”

INTERVIEW WITH KENNETH YU

"From Social Worker to LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® Trainer"

Written by Victor Chan, Editor-in-Chief

Imagine you only have HK$5 a day. You could only afford one piece of bread for the whole day's meal. It is your breakfast, lunch and dinner combined. You eat so little that you almost look like a skeleton.

You chose to go through this because you want to follow your dream. You don't want to be trapped in a dead-end job. So you took the risk to start a business, although you are not sure if it will pay off in the end.

Such was the trouble that Kenneth Yu went through after he quit his job as a social worker. Now he has found a thriving business. His clients include big multinational investment banks. How did he manage that?

JCI Changed His Life

Kenneth Yu has joined JCI for over 10 years. After becoming the president of a local chapter in 2016, he maintains an active participation in JCIHK. For example, he'll be the National General Legal Counsel in 2022.

Little did Kenneth know that joining JCI would be the turning point of his life. Back then, he was a social worker with a dream of helping young people, but he felt that he had not lived up to his potential.

"I felt that I could do something in a different position." After working in a JCI project for local Youth Leaders, Kenneth's management ability was quickly recognised by another member in his chapter.

INTERVIEW WITH KENNETH YU

“That member offered me a change in career by working for him.” It was how Kenneth went from social work to corporate training. It seemed like a bright new start, but more difficulties lay ahead of him.

“During that time, after giving money to my parents, I only had 5 dollars for meals each day. I could only afford a bun for the whole day. I usually ate it with milk or water. That’s why I was so skinny back then.”

At this difficult moment, another JCI member pointed him to a new direction. “That member told me about a LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® training course in England. He said I should probably go there and take it for the sake of my career.”

Build a Career with LEGO®

At the time, Kenneth had almost no money, and he was not certain if it was worth it. He had no idea how a toy for kids could be used for training, but he went anyway and took the course with his savings.

It was a big gambit, and it took a lot of time to make it work. But to cut a long story short, it had eventually paid off. Now LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® training has become a unique selling point for Kenneth’s training business.

“At least, when companies hear about it, it gets their attention.” But how exactly can LEGO® be used for training, especially when these bricks are used on senior executives for big multinational corporations?

“LEGO® bricks are used as a tool of expression. For example, inside a meeting, we ask each participant to make something out of the LEGO® bricks. Each of them has to explain how it expresses their thoughts.”

The advantage is that each person could speak when they normally couldn’t. “From time to time, many people just want to hide in a corner and avoid speaking. This breaks their barrier of communication.”

It was a slow process, but Kenneth’s business was finally taking off. Then disaster struck, unfortunately. First it was the social unrest in 2019. Then came something even more terrible: the COVID-19 pandemic.

Adapt or Die

The COVID-19 pandemic is unprecedented. The global economy has never come to a halt like this before. Large gatherings are prohibited at a certain point. Demand for corporate training has vanished overnight.

As a result, Kenneth's company was unable to make money for months. Soon he figured that he could not just sit and wait. He must explore new paths before his company runs out of money.

"We had to try something new. So we began to experiment with online training. We sent the LEGO® bricks to each participant's home. And then we conduct the training just like in a face-to-face meeting."

It is not easy to start a new thing from scratch, but the move paid off. Thanks to this newly discovered way of business, Kenneth's company is now able to reach clients and connections which they could not before.

"We are now able to conduct training with overseas participants. This is especially useful for multinational companies. Their staff from different countries could learn together without any travel restrictions."

It is a long way to go from an ordinary social worker to a thriving business owner. How did Kenneth remain undaunted and faithful along the path of struggles, difficulties, and disappointments?

Thoughts on "Lying Flat"

Tang Ping, or "Lying Flat", has become a popular philosophy among teenagers these days. The basic idea is to do the minimum just to get by, because it is believed that there is no hope even if one works hard.

"I think it's okay to lie flat for a while. After all, we are all humans with emotions. We could all feel blue. We could all be tearful. We could all get disappointed. It is not a shame to take a little time off," said Kenneth.

What kept Kenneth going, however, was his conviction that he was doing the right thing. "It is important to believe in what you do. Once you know that you are doing something of value, you will persist no matter what."

"If you are doing the right thing, I do not believe that you cannot succeed. It may take 5 years, 10 years or even 20 years, but eventually you will learn all the necessary lessons, and begin to see the signs of success."

Kenneth said it is also important to emphasize on people as much as results. "It's easy to overlook that people are the key to your success, especially when you are under pressure to achieve certain goals."

Believe in what you do. Persist in it. Have empathy with people who are working with you. These are the insights which have shaped Kenneth's career. I hope you find them equally useful in your own life.

A YOUNG PEOPLE'S GUIDE TO COVID RECOVERY

Written by Victor Chan, Editor-in-Chief

PAUL CHAN

LOUIS YAN

JEFFREY ANDREWS

Read this if you are impacted by COVID-19. Are you not earning as much as you want? Is your company making less money than before? Or worse, is your job or company gone forever?

You're not alone if you are in pain. Industries like tourism and retail are impacted structurally. Many job positions are unlikely to be restored anytime soon. People are struggling to survive.

Despite the difficulties, some people have found new ways to thrive. In this article, we will share three strategies for young professionals to overcome the impact of COVID-19.

These are authentic strategies which are employed by real people in Hong Kong. In fact, each person in the following stories is an outstanding young person in our city, namely:

1. Paul Chan (陳智遠, CEO of Walk in Hong Kong)
2. Louis Yan (甄澤權, well-known Hong Kong magician)
3. Jeffrey Andrews (famous Hong Kong social worker)

So what have they learned in this unprecedented pandemic? How were they affected by the large-scale disruption? And more importantly, what have they done to overcome the challenges?

Strategy 1: Exploit New Technology

Paul Chan was the former Political Assistant to the Secretary for Food and Health. In 2013, together with 3 friends, he started the company Walk in Hong Kong to promote local tourism and culture.

Unfortunately, COVID-19 has brought local tourism to a halt. Social distancing has made nearly all outdoor group activities vanish. Paul's company was deeply affected.

"I have never seen such a challenging time for the Hong Kong tourism industry since 2013 when I first started my company," said Paul. Travel agents have either closed down or slashed staff.

"Not knowing what will happen next can be profoundly debilitating, but the uncertainties have pushed us to look for better alternatives." In the end, Paul found an answer: virtual tour.

Paul and his team have managed to rise to the challenge by implementing virtualisation that rivals physical tours. They did so by collaborating with different partners for online happenings.

The result was beyond expectation. Paul said that now they "could bring the elderly who are 'locked' inside the Old People's Home to meet their family and explore the world through our lens!"

Innovation under COVID-19 is not limited to companies, but to self-employed professionals as well. With the help of the Internet, you could expand your audience like nothing before.

Strategy 2: Move Your Business Online

Louis Yan is the first Hong Kong magician who has ever done a show in Las Vegas, US. He was also an awardee of the Ten Outstanding Young Persons by JCIHK in 2019.

"At the beginning of the pandemic, we thought that it was just like SARS in 2003. We believed that everything will be alright soon. But sadly, it doesn't turn out to be like that."

Magic shows had decreased as a result, and it certainly hurted Louis' financial wellbeing. But after a few months, he found that some fellow magicians were launching virtual shows online.

"Digitalization is now the major trend for those who want to remain relevant. The world is changing with it!" So, Louis decided to embrace the transformation while COVID-19 paused the world.

"We used the time to brainstorm new magic tricks. We're also starting to learn online marketing!" In addition to online performances, Louis is also thinking about online magic courses.

"Thanks to COVID-19, a new normal is happening to us. We need to change our thinking and explore new paths for ourselves. Never give up. Insist on reaching your goal. You will make it!"

Change can be stressful, especially if you are not technically savvy. Therefore, it is important to look after your mental health and remain positive in the face of overwhelming challenges.

Strategy 3: Focus on What You Can Do

Jeffrey Andrews is a Hong Kong-born Indian social worker. He is one of Hong Kong's first registered ethnic minority social workers. He is also the first ethnic minority to ever run for a Legco seat.

During the pandemic, dark-skinned ethnic minority workers are seriously impacted. It's not just that many of them have lost their jobs. It's something more deep-rooted: systematic racism.

In an early stage of the pandemic in Hong Kong, it was rumoured that dark-skinned ethnic minorities were more likely to spread COVID-19, which it was later proven not to be the case.

"For a very long time, we have been easy targets. We have to keep defending ourselves every single time when there is an isolated incident. It's so exhausting and traumatic."

So how does Jeffrey help his fellow ethnic minorities? "I remind them to maintain a positive attitude. We may not be able to control the virus outside, but we can always remain positive inside."

Jeffrey encourages them to focus on what they can do. "For example, some of them do not speak English. I ask them to keep practicing the language so that they can land a job more easily."

It is easy to become destitute when you have hit an all-time low in your life. This is why it is essential to help others in a difficult time like this. And this is exactly what JCI is trying to do now.

RISE: Combat COVID-19 Together

JCI has just started a new global initiative called RISE. It is an acronym for Rebuild, Invest, Sustain, Evolve. Its aim is to help the world recover from COVID-19 in these 3 areas:

1. Business Recovery
2. Workforce Empowerment
3. Mental Health Awareness

As you may have found out, the above stories are closely related to RISE as well. It's our aim to discover more success stories like these young people, and share their experience with others.

In the coming year, JCIHK will launch a number of projects which help the city to combat COVID-19. We will align ourselves with the RISE initiative, and bring positive changes to the city.

If you are interested in what we are doing, please follow us on our social media for the latest news. We hope to see you in our future projects. Let's fight COVID-19 together!

Conclusion

There are three business strategies that you can learn from the stories of Paul, Louis and Jeffrey:

1. Expand your business with new technology
2. Take advantage of the e-commerce boom
3. Remain positive and keep improving yourself

New opportunities are born from the ashes of uncertainties. If you choose to remain optimistic and keep fighting, you will be able to ascend to a new level which you never thought possible before.

NATIONAL LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

YES Program

To empower youth with future skills, community exposure and international perspective in the pandemic era, JCIHK and Wofoo Leaders' Network launched the 1st Youth Empowerment Scheme (YES) in late 2021, during which over 15 YES participants had a grasp of four areas of opportunities that JCI can offer, including leadership development in TMP programs during National Convention on 24 September, Ten Outstanding Young Persons Selection Community Service Day on 7 November, preparation of short clips for World Congress bidding as well as a graduation ceremony on 14 December.

We received very positive feedback from YES participants, especially on future skills and presentation skills that they found useful in daily life, and how the scheme broadened their view of the society and the world. 2016 National President Senator Brian Kwan was invited to share his JC journey in the graduation ceremony, which encouraged the YES Participants to learn by doing. The scheme marked the first-ever collaboration between two leading youth organizations to help rebuild the society by enriching youth development.

EVOLVE

Flagship project SDG Enterprise Awards 2021 had successfully increased the awareness of SDGs in public. There was a 30% increase in social media followers for the project webpage, which helped us target over 50 partnerships and 10 sponsorships this year. More than 100 companies conform to a Sustainable Development Company and we hope to keep long-term connection with these enterprises.

Different SDGs projects also created membership growth in our chapter, this project also became one of the popular picks for projects and new members' first choice for flagship projects.

This year we have placed an advertisement on public transport with logos of partnerships and winning companies. The financial surplus will also be reinvested in SDGEA 2022 for stronger promotion locally and globally, we hope to develop technical skills and e-marketing to connect with more overseas judges and participants and to bring SDG Enterprise Awards to a globally recognised level.

Together We Care 2021 - Little Angel's Footprint

Let our mind rest, then deal with things.

Our Community Development flagship project “Together We Care” focuses on the theme about “Miscarriage” this year. As Miscarriage can lead to “long-term post-traumatic stress” . And there is lack of support to the woman with miscarriage and her husband in Hong Kong, we aim to raise public awareness and provide support to the family with miscarriage.

JCI Island is one of the active local chapters affiliated with JCI Hong Kong. Since its establishment in 1966, JCI Island has been organizing countless community's projects with a view to creating positive change in the community.

In the recent years, JCI Island has spent significant resources on organizing projects with the aim of increasing the awareness of the public towards public health and social harmony; to name but a few, (i) JCI Island Scholarship for the Disabled (since 1981) with the aim of subsidizing the disabled students; (ii) O! Love Sen Phone with the aim of promoting intra-generation harmony; and (iii) JC Sports Begin @ Home Challenge for the awareness of the healthy lifestyle.

With this in mind, JCI 55th Anniversary Celebration was held on 31 Oct 2021 and it aims to unite Islanders and friends together for celebrating the evolving journey JCI Island created in the past years.

Evolve for women's better future

To evolve is to change or develop slowly into a better and advanced state. Women have fought a long war to achieve what they have accomplished today. Though it's still not achieving the most ideal equality. The vocation of women being a mother sometimes may slow down the footsteps for passion. Only by evolving the status quo, women may finally achieve balance and be free.

Care and Dare 2021: Standby Moms Always has evolved the mindset of business settings and ways of thinking by introducing innovative short-long term solutions to lessen women's burden of unpaid work. By COLLABORATING with the private sector to provide child care services and to adapt to new normal and ACT in response to CHANGES. For example, Women are no longer primary caretaker of family, but both men and women; KPI no longer considers employees' "presence" during 9am to 6pm, but actual deliverables; Work can start and finish flexibly (e.g. allows ad-hoc early leave for family matters, extra breaks for breastfeeding, shift from full time to part time work, etc) through open communication.

JCI LION ROCK

基於 KOL 在年青人生活中的影響力越來越大，本會商業事務發展組於本年度舉辦「KOL 夢•起航」去迎合社會的轉變和幫助年青人開拓此就業路向。目的是希望透過活動帶動商家了解新興 KOL 的市場推廣模式，宣傳本地品牌，增加 KOL 和商品曝光率，最後期望商家與參賽 KOL 能達成配對。經過連月來的培訓及一眾星級導師的傾囊相授，學員們都進步神速，對如何成為出色的商業 KOL 已經頗有心得，更有不少學員與支持機構建立了長遠的合作關係。

JCI DRAGON

JCI Dragon is dedicated to helping not only the local community, but also the expatriates and their families. Covid-19 was giving hard time for domestic helpers who were devoted to working in Hong Kong as the bread-winners of their families. They were put into a dilemma that, once they choose to go back to their hometown to visit their families, they would not be given a chance to come back to work. That means they could only choose between their families and their job.

As the core project of JCI Dragon this year, “Maid in Hong Kong” digs out the difficult situation that HK Filipino Workers (FW) were facing and bridged the assistance with sister chapter JCI San Juan Pinaglabanan. We went through over 160 street interviews with HK-based Filipino domestic helpers and listened to what they needed. And reflected this situation to the assisting association Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA).

We care for everyone the same. Let's make a change starting from a small step.

2021 Business Affairs Flagship Project - CEO101: Greater Bay, Greater Way

This year we invited prominent business leaders from both Hong Kong and the Greater Bay Area as mentors and shared their experiences with our participants, taught practical lectures, and conducted mentorship and business proposal writing workshops.

The Government in the meantime launched the Greater Bay Area Youth Employment Scheme in early January to encourage young people of Hong Kong to work and pursue their careers there.

Our program has been able to provide valuable knowledge and experience sharing opportunities to our participants, especially for those who are freshly graduated, and the young entrepreneurs with few years of working experiences who wanted to develop their business or career in the GBA.

Upon working through all the tasks and sessions, participants were able to acquire the fundamentals of being an entrepreneur in the GBA as well as in the Hong Kong society.
